

Abstract

The present invention relates to gelatine capsules having a delayed release of the content of the capsule for use as an oral administration form for dietary supplement products, dietetic products and medicaments, wherein the delay of the release is effected by a polyphenol-containing plant extract contained in the capsule.